

Regarding the merger of T-Mobile and AT&T, I wholehearted support the FCCs approval of this merger. The added coverage for all T-Mobile and AT&T customers outweigh the pseudo monopoly boilerplate arguments posted by the majority. The term monopoly has lost its meaning over the years and tends to be associated with something bad or worse for all. T-Mobile and AT&T will always have competition. Smaller and more regionalized cell company operators can always market against the "big boy" and gain market share. It would be a pleasure for once to see the coverage increase in an area one company fulfilled yet the other did not, especially for a business like ours who employees travel a lot.
